Preserve Us From Jeslousy. I have often wondered why the litany did not include a prayer for preservation from jealousy. Undoubtedly of all the terrors that walk by night or by noonday, jealousy is one of the most destructive. Jealousy of a petty kind is less common among women than it used to be, though, strangely enough, it seems to be increasing among men. Some women are jealous of every attribute possessed by others-beauty, social success, wit, charm or character. Often, too, there is a certain type who love to think that other women are jealous of her. It is an obsession with her. She may be disagreeable, selfish, conceited, and irritating, yet it never occurs to her to attribute her unpopularity to that cause. Jealousy and jealousy only, she is firmly convinced, lies at the root of the other woman's dislikes. This species of femininity is happily dying out. The modern woman of fascination is as popular with women as with men and takes no delight in arousing jealousy in another line. She is well aware that popularity with her own sex is an important point to gain.-Chicago Tribune.
